

Justin Nozuka, Supposed To Grow Old

You broke my heart, when you said goodbye
And only you can lift my spirit
You gave me wings
Now you're gone
Well I'm crying inside, a thousand tears everytime I think of you
Lock the pictures away, hide the letters too
Anything to get my mind off you
And you just walk by me like nothing ever happened
When you said you would rescue me if I was ever falling
And baby there's no way that you could have forgotten
All of the memories I thought we shared
We were supposed to grow old...
Tell me how can I look up at the moon,
When I know that moon shines upon you?
Through that window in your room

Oh how I wish I had you in my arms
See darling I would never let you go
No no no no no no no...
You just walk by me like nothing ever happened
When you said you would rescue me if I was ever falling
And baby there's no way that you could have forgotten
All of the memories I thought we shared
We were supposed to grow old...
But you just walk by me like nothing ever happened
When you said you would rescue me if I was ever falling
And baby there's no way that you could have forgotten
All of the memories I thought we shared
We were supposed to grow old...
yeah yeah yeah yeah...
