

K's Choice, The Day

There must be something more
I can't buy in the store
And I cannot ignore the resemblance
With the tune I have heard
In a dream that referred to a beautiful world
In which everyone wins, ooh

Surprise surprise, bright light into my eyes
And in the red sky i saw angels fly by
And the angel of death standing next to me said
Now there's only one thing left to do for you
Sing with me, ooooooh

And they danced and they drank and they thought it was love
And they prayed and they thanked the great Lord up above
For the money he gave them the sex and the booze
The American dream in which no one can lose
And they didn't stop singing with tears in their eyes
Their mouths filled with chocolate and strawberry pies
They were all so excited, they were all very dumb
They had chosen to party the day they dropped the bomb
They dropped the bomb

And they danced and they drank and they thought it was love
And they prayed and they thanked the great Lord up above
For the money he gave them the sex and the boobs
The American dream in which no one can lose
And they didn't stop singing with tears in their eyes
Their mouths filled with chocolate and strawberry pies
They were all so excited, they were all very dumb
They had chosen to party the day they dropped the bomb
They dropped the bomb