

Karine Polwart, Four Strong Walls

You put me back together again
Just when I thought I was broken forever
So broken that nothing on this earth could mend me
You put me back together again

You put me back together again
Just like a puzzle with no pieces missing
I see myself as you see me, my friend
You put me back together again

When everything else in this world
Flickers and falters and falls
And the thunder is under our feet
You feel like four strong walls

You put me back together again
Just like the trick with the saw and the lady
Everything draws to itself in the end
You put me back together again

When everything else in this world
Flickers and falters and falls
And the thunder is under our feet
You feel like four strong walls

When everything else in this world
Flickers and falters and falls
And the thunder is under our feet
You feel like four strong walls

When everything else in this world
Flickers and falters and falls
And the thunder is under our feet
You feel like four strong walls
