

Kathleen Wilhoite, You Move Me

Pillar of strength, you've held my hand through my trials,
and all of my tribulations.

Quick-with-a-joke, ya took the wind out of my sails;
you like to try my patience,
but the truth is always told,
the answers all unfold,
when ever I let you.....

YOU MOVE ME

when you tell me those stories I've heard one hundred times before.
Each time I learn something more.

YOU MOVE ME

when you know what I'm thinking by looking in my eyes.
Anxiety just disappears.

YOU MOVE ME.

Red headed step son, when they make you feel ashamed.
You come and cry on my shoulder.

"Advice is cheap," yeah, must be my middle name.

Hey, I'm just returning the favor.

You've been left behind before;
they shut you out and locked the door.

That is something I would never do,
because whenever I let you...

YOU MOVE ME

when you tell me those stories I've heard one hundred times before;
each time I learn something more.

YOU MOVE ME

when you know what I'm thinking by looking in my eyes.
Anxiety just disappears.

YOU MOVE ME

to tears.
