Keane, Emily

Emily Emily All of my days spent are crashing around, crashing around All of my years spent are running around, running around All of my weeks spent are crashing around, crashing around

And you feel.. All of my weeks spent are flitting around, flitting around All of my years spent are waking around, waking around All of my will is blotting her out, it's blotting her out And you feel, and you feel, and you feel Emily

And you feel Emily, Emily, Emily

Well you never really had to know And you never really had to know And you never really had to know, girl

And you never really lost the part I mean you never really lost the part, ohh I mean you never really lost the part I mean you never really lost the part I mean you never really lost the part, ohh Well you never really lost the part I mean you never really lost the part
