

Kelley Polar, Entropy Reigns

All the things I tell you might be true
Is it charm or is it
Beauty you use to enthrall?
But I don't care after

All the lovely things you say to me
Are they lies or are they
Secrets that I might reveal?
All the love you try to steal
Tell me now how does it feel

All that's in my veins, sweat tears and champagne
And every night the same, over and over
The sun will set and then
We will start again
A party without end
Over and over, over and over

Since we first met you have tried
Oh so hard to get inside
Of my head but you'll see
That it's no place you should

Be true or deceive I don't care
I have nights and nights to Spare me your need to ignore
Anyone who won't adore you
See that I'm still only bored

All that's in my veins, sweat tears and champagne
And every night the same, over and over
The sun will rise and then
I will find love where I can
With all my faceless friends
Over and over, over and over again.

All that's in my veins, sweat tears and champagne
Heroin cocaine, over and over
The music plays and then
Everything will start to spin
And all the sound turns into sin
And it goes over and over, over and over, over and over, over and over again