Kelley Polar, Entropy Reigns (In the Celestial City

All the things I tell you might be true Is it charm or is it Beauty you use to enthrall? But I don't care after

All the lovely things you say to me Are they lies or are they Secrets that I might reveal? All the love you to try to steal Tell me now how does it feel

All that's in my veins, sweat tears and champagne
And every night the same, over and over
The sun will set and then
We will start again
A party without end
Over and over, over and over

Since we first met you have tried Oh so hard to get inside Of my head but you'll see That it's no place you should

Be true or deceive I don't care I have nights and nights to Spare me your need to ignore Anyone who won't adore you See that I'm still only bored

All that's in my veins, sweat tears and champagne
And every night the same, over and over
The sun will rise and then
I will find love where I can
With all my faceless friends
Over and over, over and over again.

All that's in my veins, sweat tears and champagne
Heroin cocaine, over and over
The music plays and then
Everything will start to spin
And all the sound turns into sin
And it goes over and over, over and over, over and over again