

Kelly Sweet, I Will Be Waiting

when it hurts too much to pretend and when words flow inside your head you cant say what you really mean its not that easy

if we never let each other know let the light shine in upon our souls we can dream life will never seem what life could be someday ill find you and ill catch you when you look my way

someday you wont be afraid and youll find the words to say they were always there anyway
and i will be waiting

when the tears are slowly melting down and your hearts stuck on a merry go round praying you could find a sign for when this game will end

someday ill find you and ill catch you
when you look my way
someday you wont be afraid
and youll find the words to say
they were always there anyway
and i will be waiting

when you lose your thoughts from a single look when you cant remember the last breath you took
and i will be waiting

and i will be waiting
slowly melting down
when it hurts too much to pretend
and the words flow inside your head i will be waiting