

Kendall Payne, Scratch

it's a big girl world now full of big girl things and everyday i wish i was small i've been counting on nothing but he keeps giving me his word and i'm tired of hearing myself speak do you get weary? do you ever get weak? how do you dream when you can't fall asleep?

i've been wondering what you're thinking and if you like my dress tonight would you still say you love me under this ordinary moonlight? i'm so afraid of what you'd say i'd like to know if you'd be open to starting over from scratch i'd like to know if you'd be open to giving me a second chance i used to think i was special and only i have proved me wrong i thought i could change the world with a song but i have ended up in india with no map to guide me home strangest place i think i've ever been and all this time i thought that we were friends my stubborn will is learning to bend

i'd like to know if you'd be open to starting over from scratch
i'd like to know if you'd be open to giving me a second chance

it's a big girl world now
full of big girl things
and everyday i wish i was small