

Kendall Payne, Small

Are you lonely for a friend? Are you lonely for a fantasy?
Do you feel like talking back at me or would you like it quiet now?
Well it's hard to understand, what with all my inexperience
You say I've lost my innocence, but I haven't missed it if it's gone
Would you kindly take my hand feel it pulsing with complexity
The days are dawning dark on me since you been round you brought me down to your size
You're so small no one can fit inside your world
You're so small no one can fit inside your world
And it kinda makes me mad, but it mostly makes me sad for you
The hoops that you keep jumping through will trip you up or break you down
When you find yourself alone when they've all betrayed and broke your trust
You'll see the truth inside of us was always there, just you were scared to believe
You're so small no one can fit inside your world
You're so small no one can fit inside your world
And you like it
You like it that way
And you like it
You like it that way
And you want for me to hurt just like you have hurt for countless years
With no one there to catch your tears, it's justified in your mind
I am sorry for your chains, but I will not wear them as my own
From here I think we'll walk alone but I doubt you'll find your peace of mind when I'm gone
You're so small no one can fit inside your world
You're so small no one can fit inside your world
Are you lonely for a friend? Are you lonely for a fantasy?
Do you feel like talking back at me or would you like it quiet now?
