

Kenny Chesney, Dancin' For The Groceries

She's thinking about what her kids are doing Five miles away, it's almost time for bed they're brushing teeth and hearing one more story and in the mirror she paints her lips bright red she wishes she could call and say she loves them but the bossman says no calls go out or in so she puts on a dress that might feel pretty if she didnt have to take it off again

She's dancin for the Groceries
She's dancin for the rent
she's dancing for the credit cards
that she's already spent in sequence and in laces
She's dancing for the braces
So her kids can a perfect smile someday
Smiling While she dances
is the price she has to pay

They tell her in this job there is no future So get it while you can Cause looks dont last There money in those pockets for the take in If u do it right it makes the time go fast
The music loud the drinks are mostly water What her name is tonight she cant recall the business men stair at the single mother Whose smiling while she's stairing at the wall

She's dancin for the Groceries
She's dancin for the rent
she's dancing for the credit cards
that she's already spent
in sequence and in laces
She's dancing for the braces
So her kids can a perfect smile someday
Smiling While she dances
is the price she has to pay

Someday she'll have a house out in the country Someday she'll see the other side of dawn and noone will ever know but it wats she did before she just heard the dj say your on The lights come up and they play her song
