

Kevin Ayers, Where Do The Stars End

Floating on moonlight
With my head on your knee;
But, once again, babe
I'm thinking about me.

And, though we're feeling close
And touching, too;
You have to admit, babe,
You're thinking about you.

And, where do the stars end
If I'm here all alone?
And why am I feeling
So far from home?

Spoonful of moonlight
A bottle of wine
Just look at all those stars
You're gonna have a good time.

Out there in the darkness
With the wolf and the owl;
Oh, what does it matter

If you scream or you howl?

And, where do the stars end
If I'm here all alone?
And why am I feeling
So far from home?

Love is that stranger
Who comes knocking at your door.
Gives you a sweet taste
Leaves you howling for more.

You get that taste
You've got to take it;
But when you want more
(and you will)
You're gonna have to make it.

And, where do the stars end
If I'm here all alone?
And why am I feeling
So far from home?
