

Kevin Johansen, The Gem In I

There's a gem in every person and there's a gem in I,
Everybody's got a soft spot, even the porcupine
Don't listen to the rhythm,
Don't think about these words
Just think about a river, listen to the birds
They know that you're looking
For something to happen
And it will happen soon...
There's a God in every body
And there's a God in you
Everyone comes into this world
Without a license or a shoe
Just listen... they know that you're looking
For something to happen
And it will happen soon...
Give in to love, give in to something else
Than your selfish self
Give in to love, and suddenly
Your world will turn round...
There's a soul in every person,
And there's a soul in you
Every body has a spirit, even the well to do
Just look at all the people, all running with the herd
Behind all of our actions, beneath all of our words
They know so much more
Than what we'll ever fathom
And you know something too...
Give in to love, give in to something else
Than your selfish self
Give in to love, give in to love...
And suddenly your world will turn round...
