

Kevin Tellie, Entrance

Tonight, there's nothing that'll make my eyes close
My sheets covering me are covering you
The sun on the horizon
Laying here with the moon and you

Right here a girl walks in with color in her eyes
She's got on intention of saying good-bye
Right here a girl walks in with color in her eyes
She's my artificial high

Here I am lying halfway above my bed
There you are fast asleep halfway above my head
We are here sharing a moment, sharing a dream
Never were, always now
Can't you see?

Right here a girl walks in with color in her eyes
She's got on intention of saying good-bye
Right here a girl walks in with color in her eyes
She's my eye-liner surprise

Your vocal chords whisper quietly
You wash me away into the ocean of your eyes

Right here a girl walks in with perfume in her hair and flowers everywhere

Right here a girls walks in with love in her soul prepared to console

Right here a girl walks in with shine in her eyes
My artificial high
My eyeliner surprise
My angle