

Kim Richey, That's A Lie

I let the porch light burn all night
'Till the early morning light
But you never did come by
And now you're calling me
Just to say you need
A little room to breathe
That's a lie you tell yourself so I
Can't touch you
That's a lie to shut me out but it's
Just not true
Can't you see you're not fooling me a bit
Yeah, you can try to tell me you don't care
But I know that's a lie
Well you never will be free
If you let her memory
Get all tangled up with me
I'm sorry for your pain
But I won't take the blame
All women aren't the same
[Repeat Chorus]
You say you'd like to be alone
You do just fine all on your own
[Repeat Chorus]
