

Kind Of Like Spitting, What A Wonderful Puddle

1:15 began with a phone ring i heard i stirred but I wasn't hurt tonight's lines are yours to keep go back to sleep and that's wonderful when your world at it's worst seems bearable it's not so terrible to stay terrible to say why'd you have to change?

and walk into the rain where we love to splash and play we could be here forever everyone's so convinced they know everything is true and all I believed in was you <3 it was a wonderful puddle that I played in and I was so young when it hit me there's no one you can believe but that's terrible when these evil white lies make hysterical habit forming beautiful I miss my friends they live next door but insincerity is so hard to ignore

at two and a half we hit back isn't that wonderful, so wonderful abd as they gather round our grave the splash and play they'll say why'd you have to change?

and walk into the same to where the gray rain drains we'll be gone in the morning while everyone is so convinced
all i believed in was you and i still do.
