

King Diamond, A Visit From The Dead

Sunday noon

In the "LOA" mansion the Lafayettes are meeting

There's a crisis they must resolve

Twice since they moved into this house

The Voodoo drums have spoken at night

The mansion is dark and gloomy place

A haunted landscape, a house without grace

The Voodoo burial ground is the key

Get rid of that and they're free

It must remain a secret, or the plan will never work

It must remain a secret

In comes Salem, he's 6 feet tall and dark

He is the new found butler of the "LOA" house

They ask him for advice regarding their plan

To destroy the cemetery on their land

It must remain a secret, or the plan will never work

It must remain a secret

We must do what must be done

If you steal the grave from one who sleeps

He will come for you to set him free

You must not break the chain

Salem: "Jean le Noir's spirit walks this house at night

Never will he leave, cause this is where he died

Great Wanga will hit you if you do

Destroy the cemetery of Voodoo"

If you steal the grave from one who sleeps

He will come for you to set him free

Superstitious we are not