King Diamond, Black Horsemen

So there they stood at the top of the stairs Miriam in the mood, Jonathan was scared Gazing into the dark, Jonathan saw the star For a second he turned his back And she was there like a ghost She him hard and clean To the bottom of the stairs "Now we're finally alone, Miriam Abigail is here to stay" The birth of Abigail would soon be realized The second coming of a devil in disguise And the moon did not shine It was darker than ever before On this sacred night The soul of Miriam was crying out in pain Remembering the day, arrival in the rain The pain of labour was so strong that Miriam died The final seeing was a pair of yellow eyes You can still hear her screaming If You're walking the stairs in July Riding from beyond The 7 Horsemen would arrive before the dawn Servants of the count, when Abigail was born the first time Oh no... they found her in the sarcophagus Baby Abigail was eating, Oh I cannot tell You " Take her... and bring her To the chapel in the forest So go now... The ceremony And the coffin's waiting" The Black Horsemen That's the end of another lullaby Time has come for me to say Goodnight
