

Kitty Wells, A Wedding Ring Ago

You say that I was all to blame
That's untrue because you know
I gave my heart and soul to you
A million tears ago
But you were satisfied
At least you told me so-ho-ho
That was just a wedding ring ago

I couldn't offer much to you
Just a promise to bring you joy
And I was much too young to see
You use me like a toy
Then one day a stranger came
Her name I did not know-ho-ho
That was just a wedding ring ago

She was a millionaire
It was what you wanted, you thought
But much too late you realized
Happiness could not be bought
You left her, now you want me back
But another's love I know-ho-ho
I made him mine a wedding ring ago
