

Kitty Wells, Broken Marriage Vow

[duet with Ray Crisp]

I've got the letter darling read it o'er and o'er again

You say that you are really sorry now

After all this time I suffered you asked me to come back

Marriage vows that were forgotten you are just recalling now

Marriage vows forgotten is a debt you have to pay

For I realized I can never want you now

I've thought at first I couldn't live without you being around

But you're the one I'm not to blame for broken marriage vow

[fiddle]

I've forgiven you my darling praise that God would do the same

Was before him that we made our every vow

I must say I'll always love you you're my choice of all the rest

And I'm glad the vows you've broken you at last remembered now

Marriage vows forgotten...