

Kitty Wells, Wedding Ring Ago

You say that I was all to blame that's untrue because you know
I gave my heart and soul to you a million tears ago
But you were satisfied at least you told me so-ho-ho
That was just a wedding ring ago I couldn't offer much to you
Just a promise to bring you joy and I was much too young to see
You use me like a toy then one day a stranger came
Her name I did not know-ho-ho that was just a wedding ring ago
[steel]
She was a millionaire it was what you wanted you thought
But much too late you realized happiness could not be bought
You left her now you want me back but another's love I know-ho-ho
I made him mine a wedding ring ago
