

Kosher, Robot

Living day to day with nowhere to run...
people in three piece suits make this assembly line run.
Don't live by boundaries or machines.
Got a dream (if you know what I mean) and it feels like it's everything.
I'm young and I'm free, I feel like I can do anything.
The rules tell me to stay and burn,
but this is one lesson that I'll have to learn.
Don't live by graphs and microchips.
Don't care about the government or what is said on the internet.
I have no use for these machines.
I'm not a puppet on a string,
I'm a motherfucking human being.
I'm young and I'm free, I feel I can do anything.
The rules tell me to stay and burn,
but this is one lesson I'll have to learn.
I'm not a robot.
Sure, machines have their place, but that's no place for me.
The only ones who have a care in the world
are the ones living the American dream.
The wheels keep spinning and turning,
and your mind feels like it gonna start burning.