

Koufax, It Had To Do With Love

This happens each year.

We lose some friends to commitment.

I enjoy what i hear, as soon as they can admit to defeat.

It's old enough now, we're old enough to predict it.

But I am holding my ground, I give them less than three months before it ends.

When I think of the events we had to miss because of you.

And when you think of friends that meant the most, enough not to lose.

It had to do with love.

It had to do with love.

It had to do with love.

...or rather a lack there of.

Life still goes on, for those of us not dependent.

To anything or anyone, they say avoiding routine is the best

I say it keeps you strong, to remain independent.

And though time is to long, there should be no urgency to settle down,

When I think of the events we had to miss because of you.

And when you think of friends that meant the most, enough not to lose.

It had to do with love.

It had to do with love.

It had something to do with love.
