

Krister Linder, Before It's All Over

i split the clouds and pierce the sky i dive through depths and rise to heights i stay awake and burn tonight i fear no dark 'coz i blaze with light i live for love and die for life to kiss the beast and kill the lie this could be my last chance alive to feel love

this could be my last chance alive
to breathe love
then if tomorrow i died i'd be in love before it's all over

i slash the veil and boost the spark to shoot a flame into your heart it's all for you, for love, for lust that streak of gold beneath the dust that sends a flash upon my flesh and puts my weary ghost to rest this could be your last chance alive

to feel love
this could be your last chance alive
to breathe love
then if tomorrow you died you'd be in love
before it's all over

i used to cry and curse the night i feared the dark and prayed for light i thought i'd drift forevermore in search of something to adore but now i blaze with life anew though death has pierced me through and through i vapourise the morning dew and all along it's all for you i break the cage and hit the stage to curse with love and bless with rage the sun that set arise again go tell your friends i'm born again

this could be our last chance alive
to feel love
this could be our last chance alive
to breathe love
then if tomorrow we die we'll be in love
before it's all over