

Kristian Valen, Where Are You Now

you told me that life never treated you right you just couldn't take it so you left me in the night without saying without saying where or when or if we would meet again make me understand I know what it feels like when everything is wrong you're searching for answers while you try to stay strong but then, it's all just falling apart it may not be much but you'll always be here in my heart but where are you now, my love?
is it me you're thinking of?
I may never know I'll come searching for you high and low you told me that no one really cared about you how can you say this when you know it's not true?
cause I I love you with all of my heart and that I have done from the start tell me what's tearing you apart believe in yourself now no matter how far out open water you might think you are and you'll see that you're everything you can be and you will understand that I'm here if you need a hand