

Kwan, Unconditional love

For I have told you time and again you look at me and for sure I know and if there ever should come that day you'll be in my arms if you feel low I unlocked your door and let you out for you're the one I could not live without Should you ever come to question my trust would you think again if I was to go could you ever leave me now that you know this is unconditional love I could never bare you to try an ease away once my own, you'll always be the one who stays For there are so many coils and snares you would get lost without my helping hand and I would never forgive myself if I would loose you from my sight Should you ever come to question my trust
would you think again if I was to go
could you ever leave me now that you know
this is unconditional love