

Lampshade, Within Symmetry

In the city lights that always shines
In the city streets that never sleep
There is my treasure
There is my playground

Let me run into your arms again to you
You are the playground where I used to play

Let me run into your arms again
You are the playground

My playground is in the city up upon the hill
There is my treasure
There is my playground

Let me run and hide here once again
Let me find the secret places
That I used to know
There I buried my treasure
