Lanemeyer, Broken Dream November

your weather is coming in i feel you here again i dont look like i did a little bruised from everything you were all you never got to be you're in my heart watch over me waiting here for you and the sun dont shine as bright without you still i dream of you and the sun dont shine as bright without you you're in the stars ill wish on you tonight to watch over me forever as these angels that you are in this broken dream november five years gone five years lost id give em all back to have you your light burned out tonight and it paint my world forever all these colors that you were will not fade with time
