Lanemeyer, Where's My Letter

i lost you and found you i've fallen i am now so sleep now and dream me and summers sweet memories just hold me and breath me please trust me please see me you are so smart you're shinning you melt me when you're smiling cause i wanna know what made you pick up that phone and restart the conversation rewrite the book refill the pages with thoughts erased by our complications so what do i say now so what do i do now to show you to trust me believe me why cant you see me? forget the past lets go back to our place we'll fade away we'll find that day
