Larue, Reaching

I was built afraid I share the blame I was born with these inconsistencies

You made me come alive I can feel You inside Your love's like a painted sky Overwhelms me every time

And I'm reaching for You Arms stretched towards You All these things I bring And You pursue me And I surrender Take, Lord, what You see

Whatever the cost I gained everything in loss

In the greatness of Your love It compels me to give it up

In the light of what I see There is nothing good in me
