

Lefty Frizzel, If I Had Half The Sense (A Fool Was

If I had half the sense a fool was born with I wouldn't let my pride keep hangin' on
To put up with the things you come up with I'd pick what's left of me and move along
Knowing just how much you liked to hurt me don't mean I've got to stand it every day
If I had half the sense a fool was born with I'd pack my bags and I'd be on my way
But I guess I'm twice as dumb as a biggest fool every morn
Cause even a fool leaves home when he knows the love is gone
If I had half the sense a fool was born with I'd leave my pride around
And cover me some ground and find myself to cry in another town
(guitar + steel)
But I guess I'm twice as dumb...
