

Leo Sayer, The World Has Changed

though the world has changed we're still the same you know that I love you though the world has changed counting the months and the years when I lived alone the days were so bleak and the nights were so long suddenly you were there though I never thought about you now that the world has changed it's so strange sharing a secret that no one could understand feeling brave in my heart yet too scared to let go of you suddenly life has changed when you said I love you and though the words were plain
we're still the same -- I still love you
ah
one night I thought that you were gone what could I do?
runnin' around in the pouring rain lookin' for you loving you when you're not there I'm never lonely anywhere outside the world has changed we're the same
