Leslie Phillips, The Turning

The turning from light to shadows From burning to indifference The turning of heart to granite Of steel hopes to molten fear And when it turns on me Don't let it turn on me The turning of admiration to obsession Of caring to control The turning of shouts to whispers Of warm and full to grey and hollow