Limbeck, Honk Wave

She really broke my heart in two.
Four years later, I still never forgave her.
The thing is, when I was ready to,
I had completely dismissed her.

Now I think I'm driving through her state.

And I'm not ready for some burnt down bridge just yet.
And I'm not sayin I want anything from you.
The only thing I really want now,
If I see you, Suze,
Is if we drove side by side,
On a highway in the in the beehive state,
That we could Honk and Wave.

So I'll just keep taking the 15 through.
It's kind of early so I'm swerving and swerving.
There's really nothing else to do,
except sit and keep steering, thinking, driving through her state.

And I'm not ready for some burnt down bridge just yet.
And I'm not sayin I want anything from you.
The only thing I really want now,
If I see you, Suze,
Is if we drove side by side,
On a highway in the in the beehive state,
That we could Honk and Wave.

I wonder of a way that I could make her feel like an ass,
Without her thinking I'm trying to do that.
