Limp Bizkit, Why

It might take too long to turn the lights back on I guess I lay awake, I guess I'll lay here and pray Could you pour me one more drink? A glass of gasoline Help me burn my pain, light me up in the rain My so-called life is so good

Why do we die? Why do we die? Slow down

You wonder how I've been, you ain't been checking in Just hope my vital signs would send me home again My baby's in the grass, Jesus on the dash I drive myself insane just hoping I could stay My so-called life is so good

Why do we die? Why do we die? Slow down

Slow down, slow down, slow down, slow down

When deserts turn into floods, White orchids cover with mud No magic carpet today, not today Who takes the reigns when I'm gone disintegrate from my throne? No magic carpet today, not today

Why do we die? Why do we die? Why do we die? Why do we die?
