

Linda Eder, Now When The Rain Falls

Now when the rain falls its heavy and gray it tumbles and pitches through space I can remember when rain was soft when you kissed the rain from my face Now when the wind blows i run from its touch when you were the silk on my skin people in love walk inside the wind when nothing can hurt you it holds you to close but now im outside looking in One day all my world circled about you now when i move on without you nothing on earth is the same Do you remember the sweep of the rain the sound of it strumming the sky people in love walk inside that song but now when i listen the melody's changed the rain only whispers good-bye I dont want to cry when i think of you but now when the rain falls.. i do
