

LMNT, Running Home

I never gave her a reason
I just said I was sorry
And I was goin' away
She said it's the end of a season
And then something 'bout changes
And knowin' I couldn't stay

She said I know you must make your dreams come true
You must find your own way, baby

(Chorus)

But when the rain is falling
You know where I will be
Where I can hear you calling
Just come running home to me
Don't matter where your going
Won't matter where you've been
Where there's a cold wind blowing
You can come running home again

She tried not to cry
She fought back the tears
That she didn't want me to see
I whispered goodbye
I wondered if she knew
How much she meant to me
She said I hope you make all of your dreams come true
I know you will find a way, baby

(Chorus)

And when the rain is falling
You know where I will be
Where I can hear you calling
Just come running home to me
Don't matter where your going
Don't matter where you've been
Where there's a cold wind blowing
You can come running home again

I know she is where I want to be
Where my heart will always take me
When all the rain is falling
Gray skies are moving in
I know who I'll be calling
I'll go running home again
No matter where I'm goin
No matter where I've been
I'll always get there knowing
I can go running home again

I'll be running home

(Chorus)

When all the rain is falling
Gray skies are moving in
I know who I'll be calling
I'll go running home again
No matter where I'm goin
No matter where I've been
I'll always get there knowing
I can go running home again

(Chorus)

When all the rain is falling
Gray skies are moving in
I know who I'll be calling
I'll go running home again
No matter where I'm goin
No matter where I've been
I'll always get there knowing
I can go running home again
