

Lobo, That Shows You What I Know

(Kent LaVoie)

The last thing I needed was you
You and your stubborn mind
And your different point of view
You and your ways of doing
Things I don't even do
The last thing I needed was you

The last thing I wanted to find
Was someone to come
Along and make me change my mind
You turned my whole world
Into something new
The last thing I wanted was you

But that shows you what I know
About the way my heart goes
I thought our love would never grow
Well that shows you what I know

The things in life that can't be explained
Either bring you joy or they bring you pain
I was sure that you and I
Would never make it through
The last one I thought I'd love was you

All I ever needed was you
