

Lodger, I Love Death

Waking ten times to take a piss you can taste the cancer in my morning kiss Scratch the rash on my back, perfect bliss you want a life companion and you're getting this men can get a few dimes
and man can get it up few times
men can get a few dimes
You have to look away at my every meal inconvenient, but that's the deal This is what we've become when nothing's real mental wounds that never heal
men can get a few dimes
men can get a few dimes
man can get a few dimes
man can get a few dimes
