

Longwave, I Know It's Coming Someday

when all your strength is wearing thin hanging on until the end i can give you what your looking for after the years you give in vain reaching out to feel again
i can give you what your looking for
well i know its coming someday in the pit of every morning well i know it all too well know it all too well and now the pain is kicking in with every crack it tears the skin i can feel you when your dying look back on the days you lived before look back on the nights and ask for more and when there's no one left you'll see me there
well i know its coming someday
in the glow of every morning i know you could bring me back you could bring me back yeah well i know its coming someday and it just might be tomorrow
well i know it all too well
know it all too well
i know it all too well