

Lou Reed, Science Of The Mind

In the science of the mind
there is no forgiving Paralyzed I lay here sleeping quiet as a little child

Heart starts beating, blood rushing pounding moving quiet as a little lamb
In the science of the mind
limbs are bound devoid of movement

The injuries we do in kind are visited upon us often
trying hard to move a shadow

Don't bury me I'm still alive
the science of the mind unyielding
The science of the mind unyielding
