

Lucy May, Paper Heart

I wish somebody told me I would light up and in a second I would turn to ash
I wish somebody told me I would tear up Always be out there looking for my other half

That I had a paper heart
That I had a paper heart

I wish somebody told me I would roll up into a little ball that you could throw away, if I would have known I would've fold it up into a 747 airplane.

'Cause I've got a paper heart

Should've paid attention to the state of my condition before I kissed you that way I should have listened thought I was a rocking stone, standing my ground all on my own but I was blown away, 'cause I got a paper heart.

Oh, I would have never looked at you if I only if I knew never would have kissed you that way I should have listened thought that I was strong enough, you only was too know of that love but I was blown away, 'cause I've got a paper heart.

I wish somebody told me I would light up
and in a second I would turn to ash

I've got a paper heart
I've got a paper heart
and I had a paper heart
I've got a paper heart

I wish somebody told me, someone should have told me I've got a paper heart, that I had a paper heart I've got a paper heart, I've got the paper heart.
