Lush, Astronaut

I recall how we used to meet Running through the windy streets Faces touched with body heat I know I can see us breathing from above Lives are changing with our useless love Is that enough ?

To feel her pain To be with him, the same To see you in vain

I rely on a moment's thought Floating like an astronaut Hiding is the last resort I know