MACKLEMORE, Hold Your Head Up (feat. Xperie

Hold your head up, there's a light in the sky I know you're fed up, but you must try to survive Each moment's precious, don't let life pass you by Keep focused, keep your eyes on the prize Hold your head up, there's a light in the sky I know you're fed up, but you must try to survive Each moment's precious, don't let life pass you by Keep focused, keep your eyes on the prize

A friend of mine once told me, "We have many paths in this journey" They act in different directions, so when you question don't be worried It's not a wrong one, beauty can be found in all of them You'll meet people whose paths intersect, but you don't know how long you'll walk with them 'Cause the truth is, and it's so hard, but you'll never know How long we'll continue with our loved ones down this rugged road The path veers and it's clear that we must steer alone I've learned if you can't hold on to that moment that exists- let it go 'Cause freedom is God

Freedom is acknowledging the mask you have on and possessing the strength to take it off Freedom is accepting every step of the path

And when it's hard having faith in the ability to embrace it, that's where you are And this is it

The same shit that we work towards, but go against in the same sense

My friend hit me to some game and truth unraveled, she said, "The brighter the light, the darker the And since I'm on cliché terms, knowing is half the battle

But I don't know, so I just go with what was destined

Life can be a burden or a blessing The choice is yours to be connected It's there if you want it, you got it, now let it

Hold your head up, there's a light in the sky I know you're fed up, but you must try to survive Each moment's precious, don't let life pass you by Keep focused, keep your eyes on the prize Hold your head up, there's a light in the sky I know you're fed up, but you must try to survive Each moment's precious, don't let life pass you by Keep focused, keep your eyes on the prize

I feel like I have nothing to give right now This is my trial, tribulations, and it must go down But where's the up? I'm stuck with the broken smile No joking now, wanting to grab a swish and smoke this out The moment of a man choosing what path I will go down Do I give in, give up, or get up and live right now? With a split gut pick myself up and spit my style This is the only thing that can hold my ground You're born into this world alone, and alone you'll go out All I have is myself and everyone else I doubt You can only trust yourself and depend on the help of the pound Inside of the chest that beats with the breath of the now No sunshine when she's gone, I can only see clouds No homies can hold me down, the spirit's testing me now But I can withstand this world, but it seems so foul Flood of emotions, it's like I'm being held down to drown Hell's right around the corner, but I can turn it around You always have a choice, no matter the situation you're not bound To nothing, no one, you're chosen for this job This is your life, you can't escape this bitch when it's hard Just know that it passes, but you'll collect scars They never go away, but they will make you who you are This is a beautiful struggle, I share it in song 'cause I can't control this, remember: the moment's beyond us

Hold your head up, there's a light in the sky I know you're fed up, but you must try to survive Each moment's precious, don't let life pass you by Keep focused, keep your eyes on the prize Hold your head up, there's a light in the sky I know you're fed up, but you must try to survive Each moment's precious, don't let life pass you by Keep focused, keep your eyes on the prize

And all my people say whoa, whoa, yeah And all my people say whoa, whoa And all my people say whoa, whoa, yeah And all my people say whoa, whoa C'mon

Hold your head up, there's a light in the sky I know you're fed up, but you must try to survive Each moment's precious, don't let life pass you by Keep focused, keep your eyes on the prize Hold your head up, there's a light in the sky I know you're fed up, but you must try to survive Each moment's precious, don't let life pass you by Keep focused, keep your eyes on the prize