

Madison, Drink It Don't Think It and when you're all about yourself again, i'm sorry i must be tripping over something that i said come on you must have noticed (we could have done things different) i didnt try to hide this (we could have been less childish) how did you just forget me, standing on your porch of your house in new jersey (but we could start things over, start things over)

don't you don't you love
(we could run)
don't you don't you leave (away)
don't you don't you hate that shes not sorry and i, i saw it all along, i saw it all a and now, a simple misconception, a promise for redemption a note that says your leaving (kay kay kay)

(cause we could have done things different) p.s please don't call (it could have been less childish)
p.s please don't write
(but we could start things over, start things over)
p.s cause i don't ever want to speak to you

don't you don't you love
(we could run)
don't you don't you leave (away)
don't you don't you hate that shes not sorry

won't you pack up and leave and can't you take time to breathe (we could think things out)

don't you don't you love
(we could run)
don't you don't you leave (away)
don't you don't you hate that shes not sorry
