

Madness, (A Portrait Of) Jennie

(Thompson/Woodgate)

Every morning at the break of dawn
Sleeping deeply next to me
To every evening as the sun goes down
Together we stay together we'll stay

Nobody else to bring you down
Nobody else to be around
This time you're free
Nobody else to draw you away
Nobody else to take you away
This time just you and me

I'm so pleased that you waited for me
And I thought of you oh so much
It could fill an eternity
Her big sad eyes that stare
Nobody else going to bring you down
Nobody else to be around
This time you're free

Where I come from
Nobody knows
And where I'm going
Everything goes

(We'll meet again)

Nobody else to blow you away
Nobody else to take you away
This time just you and me

I've searched about everywhere
But I still can't find her
Events that cease at my memory
I still can't picture

Mother of Mercy, Sister of Mary
Please help me (to find her)
Is there something you should tell me
Please hear me (to find her)

Nobody else going to bring you down
Nobody else to be around
This time you're free

Nobody else to blow you away
Nobody else to take you away
This time just you and me

Mother of Mercy, Sister of Mary
Please help me (to find her)
Is there something you should tell me
Please hear me (to find her)

Nobody else going to bring you down
Nobody else to be around
This time you're free
