

Maggie Reilly, Sunlight

Sunlight on the water, reflecting in your eyes
You smiling move towards me, under those blue skies
Waist deep in the water, you lifting up your hand
No sun was ever stronger, a golden wonderland

Here in the city, just endless gray
No rest, no silence, as you fade away
I try to find you in all my dreams
Lost illusion, never as it seems

Sunlight fills my mind you're never far away
Oh how I long for you
Ask me to stay with you forever and a day
I'll run to you, I'll run to you

Now time just stands frozen
That smile fixed on your face
Reflections on the water
Two figures lost in space

Here in the city I find no sleep
I feel so helpless, I am in too deep
I've tried to find you down all the days
And you come to haunt me, take my breath away

Sunlight fills my mind you're never far away
Oh how I long for you
Ask me to stay with you forever and a day
I'll run to you, I'll run to you

Now sand and sea still touch me
Upon that distant shore
You holding out your silence
To keep for evermore

Here in the city, I can find no sleep
I feel so helpless, I am in too deep
I've tried to find you down all the days
And you came to haunt me, take my breath away

To take my breath away...
Holding out your silence to keep for evermore...
Take my breath away...
