Magnum, Lords Of Chaos

Riders of the night are screaming hard above my heels Princely lord of chaos forges black and fiery wheels And the mother of the earth is being widowed in my sight Father of deception, using wrong instead of right

And the moon overshadows the sun And the masters of war carry on While the fools and the jokers make fun See them run

Sister of illusion, bend and follow in their mould Brother of opinion, just remember what you're told Not a weapon in a traitor's hand will harm you twice as bad Forests of indifference guaranteed to make you mad

And the moon overshadows the sun And the masters of war carry on While the fools and the jokers make fun See them run

They can't be playing, turning the upside down They've got me praying, I'll end up in the ground

When they burn up everything, kill the air for me to breathe Still they would be thinking there was more they could achieve Then at last, they would be beaten, for alone they all would stand Looking at each other, just as if it had been planned

And the moon disappears with the sun And the masters are masters of none While the fools and the jokers are gone Now they're one

They can't be playing, turning the inside down They've got me praying, I'll end up in the ground

And the moon overshadows the sun And the masters of masters of none While the fools and the jokers are gone Now they're one
