

Marc Almond, One Big Soul

I'll be there in the summer sky
In the tears that you cry
I'll be there when the darkness falls at night

I'll be there in the snow and rain
Softly easing all your pain
I'll be there when you wake in the early morning light

We're the heart of one big soul
A very little part of one big whole
We're like a passing thought in one big dream
We're just a moment caught in one big scheme
Look around
I'll be everywhere
Look around
I'll be everywhere

I'll be there in your lonely hours
In the bird song, in the flowers
I'll be on your pillow in your bed

I'll be there in the words you say
When you work and when you play
I'll be in your heart and in your head

Because we're the heart of one big soul
A very little part of one big whole
We're like a passing thought in one big dream
We're just a moment caught in one big scheme
Look around

I'll be everywhere
Look around
I'll be everywhere
Look out at the dark now
Come on look out at the dark now
Yeah look out at the dark now
Look around

I'm in the fire that keeps you warm
In the pen that fills the form
I'm in the little habits that you do
In the very thought of you

Because we're the heart of one big soul
A very little part of one big whole
We're like a passing thought in one big dream
We're just a moment caught in one big scheme
Look around
Yeah I'll be everywhere
Look around
I'll be everywhere

We're all part of one big soul
We're all part of one big soul
You are me and I am you
Heart and body through and through
So look out at the dark now
Come on look out at the dark now
Look out at the dark now
