

Marc Bolan, The Friends

O Satyr come
and suck my thumb
'cos you're a little fawn
and you need me.

On hoofy feet
through the windy wheat
'cos you're a little fawn
and I'll feed thee.

Down the delly way
with your belly grey I've some fruit and nuts
and a reed O.

And I'll skip with you in the midnight blue
and carve fluting pipes
for you to play on.

In the deeply dark
when the wolves loom large I've a snugly nook
'neath the meadow.

Where you'll sleep and be curled and friends with me through the evil night
till starling morning.
